Supermodel is a tragic comedy story about a young Russian girl Olga Ivanova who comes to New York from a small village. Olga lives behind her countryside home and a farmer boyfriend. The young girl meets three top supermodels in New York who help her to achieve a dream becoming a supermodel. Olga's new friends are Candy, Pritty and Christina. These supermodels jet set around the world, they have access to the best parties and events; they are followed by paparazzi and involved in scandals. These girls have no ordinary lifestyle. There are stories of short temper, drugs, lovers, backstabbing and eating disorders. Supermodel is about the world of fashion, emotional drama and all the good and ugly that comes with the supermodel status.

There are many awkward, dramatic and ironic situations in Olga's new life. She struggles with her identity just like the character in Dostoevsky's novel 'Crime and Punishment'. Olga doesn't want to be perceived as an outcast, she experiences a glamorous lifestyle in New York and becomes determined to leave her past behind. When her boyfriend comes to visit her, Olga breaks up with him. But on her path to become a supermodel Olga can't deny that she is not like her new friends; deep inside she is a kind and considered person. Supermodel takes us through the world of brutal competition, controversial issues and spotlight dilemma.

At the end Olga reconnects with her boyfriend. She manages to impact the lives of her new supermodel friends by inspiring them to become better personalities.
